

My name is leacha Lusk. I am the Spokesperson House of Transformation

I came from a lifestyle of 19 years of homosexuality and I honestly thought I was born gay! I was a stud and I thought God made a mistake by putting me in a female body. My lifestyle consisted of many drugs, alcohol and was homeless for 12 years. In 2003 I was released from prison. My mother passed away in 2004 which left me clueless on how to live independently, how to fit into society and how to conquer the world with me being a homosexual convict. I found myself jobless! No one would hire me or give me just a chance to prove myself, therefore I did what I knew best and depended on lovers and so called friends that turned into lovers to help me get on my feet. I moved from one state to another and I always had a back up plan in another state. Most of life I was chasing love, a sense of belonging, a purpose of life, a place of being, peace and happiness; just and endless cycle that was spiraling downhill out of control. It drove me crazy so much to the point that I've been in the psychiatric hospital three times. First time I was living in my hometown Fort Worth, TX I knew something wasn't right with me, second time I was living in Jacksonville, FL I tried to kill myself and third time in 2010 living in Houston, TX I called the cops on myself cause I knew I was going to kill someone for breaking my heart.

In 2015 at Free Indeed Church International I met Christ for myself. All it took was one question "Are You Saved?". I knew as a child I was but I wasn't sure because of the way I was living. But what I did know was I was tired. I fully submitted and surrendered myself, opened my heart and mind and received Christ. I've never looked back or been the same since. God truly transformed inside and out. Now I'm reach out to others near and far who are walking the walk I once walked, going where I once been and are at where I once was. Sharing my testimony, transformation and how God can and will only if you come to Him. I'm humbly happy to say that my life it's self drew me to be a part House Of Transformation as the Spokesperson.
